Introduction

- Background – our particular interests and perspectives
- Aim – To explore Widening Participation (WP) in the 19th and 21st century contexts and whether WP is not a new notion.

Definitions of working-class

- a social group that consists of people who earn little money, often being paid only for the hours or days that they work, and who usually do physical work (Cambridge dictionary)
- Socio-economic groups - From 2001 the National Statistics Socio-economic Classification (NS-SEC) has been used for all official statistics and surveys. It replaces Social Class based on Occupation (SC, formerly Registrar General's Social Class) and Socio-economic Groups (SEG). 8 categories. NS-SEC has been constructed to measure employment relations and conditions of occupations. Conceptually these are central to delineating the structure of socio-economic positions in modern societies and helping to explain variations in social behaviour and other social phenomena.

Challenging the WP model

- Maintenance of social & economic inequalities through a hierarchical differentiated HE structure (meritocracy supports enhanced opportunities for m/c)?
- Exacerbates the academic/vocat. divide; debases vocational routes?
- Alternatives that offer real value in informal adult education?

Conclusions

- Both WP and class as it is applied to education are contested notions
- WP is not new
- Importance of structure and individual agency
- Awareness of historical developments can be illuminating
