Teach the 3Rs at university? Your 'aving a larrrf!

Original Citation

Corley, Caroline (2010) Teach the 3Rs at university? Your 'aving a larrrf! In: "Communicating to the public" Vitae Public Engagement Competition, 26th April 2010, Great North Museum, Newcastle. (Unpublished)

This version is available at http://eprints.hud.ac.uk/8920/

The University Repository is a digital collection of the research output of the University, available on Open Access. Copyright and Moral Rights for the items on this site are retained by the individual author and/or other copyright owners. Users may access full items free of charge; copies of full text items generally can be reproduced, displayed or performed and given to third parties in any format or medium for personal research or study, educational or not-for-profit purposes without prior permission or charge, provided:

- The authors, title and full bibliographic details is credited in any copy;
- A hyperlink and/or URL is included for the original metadata page; and
- The content is not changed in any way.

For more information, including our policy and submission procedure, please contact the Repository Team at: E.mailbox@hud.ac.uk.

http://eprints.hud.ac.uk/
Academic Study Skills are important to help students to study at a higher level, but do they already have these skills at the right level before they get here?

Students understand the importance of the skills and want more training, regardless of previous qualifications.

Generally, staff think that most students start with limited skills and do seek support to improve.

We need to teach these skills at university level.