University of Huddersfield Repository

Greenwood, Nicola and Lewis, Kiara

Health Promotion and Overweight Children: Whose responsibility? Insights into paediatric nurse’s attitude toward health promotion

Original Citation

This version is available at http://eprints.hud.ac.uk/id/eprint/21527/

The University Repository is a digital collection of the research output of the University, available on Open Access. Copyright and Moral Rights for the items on this site are retained by the individual author and/or other copyright owners. Users may access full items free of charge; copies of full text items generally can be reproduced, displayed or performed and given to third parties in any format or medium for personal research or study, educational or not-for-profit purposes without prior permission or charge, provided:

- The authors, title and full bibliographic details is credited in any copy;
- A hyperlink and/or URL is included for the original metadata page; and
- The content is not changed in any way.

For more information, including our policy and submission procedure, please contact the Repository Team at: E.mailbox@hud.ac.uk.

http://eprints.hud.ac.uk/
Health Promotion and Overweight Children: Whose Responsibility?
An insight into paediatric nurses attitude toward health promotion

Nicola Greenwood
Kiara Lewis
Background

In the UK
• 1 in 5 4-5 year olds overweight or obese
• 1 in 3 10-11 year olds overweight or obese
(Public Health England 2014)

NHS Future Forum (2012) vision 'making every contact count'

Acute care ward treats 2594 children a year.

Personal experience
Method

During early 2013

- 6 acute care paediatric nurses
- purposive sampled
- semi structured interviews
- interviews were recorded and transcribed
- thematic analysis
- ethical approval
Key findings

- Whose Responsibility?
  - Sensitivity of the issue
  - Relationship with parents
  - Benefits
  - Specific Skills
  - Institutional Support
Questions

- Should acute care paediatric nurses be promoting health?
- If so when?
- If so how can we support them?
- If not – who should be?
‘I think you do to be honest (have a role in health promotion), they come in, they’re under your care and you’ve got a duty of care as a whole, the whole person, not just a set of symptoms, so I do think we have a role in a way’.

..if their child’s ill, and whether your fat or thin (if you’ve got), if you’re having an asthma attack, it’s scary, so perhaps that moment is not the right time, but then I do think it’s should be revisited more calmly'.

…I think you need to deal with the initial reason for their admission before you start bringing up stuff like this. That’s what I feel, cos I think parents would feel that you’re not listening to them and you know helping them with whatever they’ve come in with, whatever’s wrong with them.