

University of HUDDERSFIELD

University of Huddersfield Repository

Cox, Geoffrey

'There must be a poetry of sound that none of us knows...' Early British documentary film and the prefiguring of musique concrète

Original Citation

Cox, Geoffrey (2016) 'There must be a poetry of sound that none of us knows...' Early British documentary film and the prefiguring of musique concrète. In: Alternative Histories of Electronic Music Conference, 14-16 Apr 2016, The Science Museum Research Centre, Queen's Gate, London. (Unpublished)

This version is available at <https://eprints.hud.ac.uk/id/eprint/28202/>

The University Repository is a digital collection of the research output of the University, available on Open Access. Copyright and Moral Rights for the items on this site are retained by the individual author and/or other copyright owners. Users may access full items free of charge; copies of full text items generally can be reproduced, displayed or performed and given to third parties in any format or medium for personal research or study, educational or not-for-profit purposes without prior permission or charge, provided:

- The authors, title and full bibliographic details is credited in any copy;
- A hyperlink and/or URL is included for the original metadata page; and
- The content is not changed in any way.

For more information, including our policy and submission procedure, please contact the Repository Team at: E.mailbox@hud.ac.uk.

<http://eprints.hud.ac.uk/>

There must be a poetry of sound which none of us knows...Meanings in footsteps, voices in trees, and woods of the day and night everywhere. There must be massed choruses of sound in the factory and in the street and among all men alive... I know not the first thing about them, though I have, like everybody else shut my eyes...and sat for hours trying to make something of the door-bangings and footfalls and crazy oddments of conversation that broke the plush darkness of a London night. We are the tyros, all of us, with a new world opening up on the horizon. I see no reason why anyone at the moment should envy Columbus. (Grierson, 1930)