“Long-term conditions will be the leading cause of disability by 2020” WHO

“In the UK there are currently more than 17.5 million people living with chronic conditions such as diabetes, arthritis and heart failure ... there are estimated to be approx 1,500 community matrons currently working in the NHS ... and by March next year, 220,000 of the most needy patients will be getting support and care in their homes from 3,000 community matrons and other case managers ...”

Patricia Hewitt MP
Secretary of State for Health
May 2007

THE WORK OF COMMUNITY MATRONS is to improve the quality of life of people suffering with long term conditions (LTCs). Both a consequence of and a means of achieving this objective is reducing the number of times people with LTCs need to be admitted to hospital and when hospital admission is necessitated, to then reduce the length of stay required. While these two outcomes are very significant, and not only for the financial savings attributed to them, they are but two indicators among a great many other indicators of how improvements to the quality of life manifest.

COMMUNITY MATRONS 2007 brings together these autonomous practitioners in a forum that will share examples of best practice and innovation. Presentations reflect all areas that are key to the fully functioning community matron role. These range from preparation for the community matron role, dynamic case management models, IT solutions, managing risk through to supporting community matrons in practice.
