University of Huddersfield

- Around 20,000 full and part-time students both home and overseas.
- ‘We offer high quality teaching with a strong vocational emphasis’.
- Amongst the UK’s top five providers of sandwich courses.
- Pioneering UK University, no fees for sandwich placements for 2006 entrants.

Lisa Ward TQEF Project Manager (Student Employability and Good Practice in Placement Provision)
University of Huddersfield is:

“Top for teaching quality among all the new universities in the North of England”

THES League Table, 2005

“Top new university in the UK for customer satisfaction among its students”

Placement Take Up Trends

• UK wide trend for decrease in sandwich placement take up, confirmed by other Universities
• Decrease since 1990s
• Why?
  – The research base is inconclusive – lots of competing factors
  – More students living at home?
  – Greater financial pressure?
  – Peer Pressure

Do students who do sandwich degrees get better:
Degrees? Jobs? Salaries?

Students from University of Huddersfield who graduated in 2004, six months after graduation (DLHE). Registered on a sandwich degree (approximately 2000 students).

Comparison:
- Studied over four years with one year sandwich placement
- Studied full-time over three years

First Class and Upper Second Class Degrees

Lisa Ward TQEF Project Manager (Student Employability and Good Practice in Placement Provision)
In our survey year 14% more graduates were in work who had done a sandwich placement.
Jobs Six months After Graduation

Placement - Yes
- Managers, Senior Officials and Professionals: 24%
- Other Job, Doing Something Else or Looking for Work: 47%
- Associate Professional and Technical Occupations: 29%

Placement - No
- Managers, Senior Officials and Professionals: 18%
- Other Job, Doing Something Else or Looking for Work: 67%
- Associate Professional and Technical Occupations: 15%

Summary

• In our survey students who did placements tended to get:
  – Better degrees
  – Better jobs
  – Better salaries

BUT

We can not link this directly say this is solely because of placements. However placement tutors often say that students come back:
  – more mature
  – ready to learn
  – some context for academic learning
  – more determined to do well and get a good job

Making Podcasts

Lisa Ward TQEF Project Manager (Student Employability and Good Practice in Placement Provision)
Aims for Podcasts

- Persuade students to consider taking up a placement.
- Best ambassadors are other students
  - Course specific meetings, 3 students maximum
- Representative Students
  - Mixture of students not only high flyers
  - Students from Black and Minority Ethnic Backgrounds.
  - International Students
  - Mature
  - Mix of sandwich and other placement type
- Skilled Staff – Jane Gaffikin
- Piloting

Who for?

- Generic Resource
- University Wide Appeal
- Used by:
  - First and Second Year Students
  - Placement Units
  - Careers Service
  - Academic and Placement Tutors
  - Open Days and events for prospective students
- Core Film
- Individual Case Studies

Lisa Ward TQEF Project Manager (Student Employability and Good Practice in Placement Provision)
Formats

- What is a Podcast?
  - Decided to make video casts with audio options
    - Personality came across better
    - Subtitles held interest, positive feedback
- Host on University Website
  - As downloadable files for mobile phones/iPods
  - As streamed video / audio
- DVD
  - Watch at Home
  - University and Placement Unit Events

Lisa Ward TQEF Project Manager (Student Employability and Good Practice in Placement Provision)
Production Stages

- Selection of Students
  - Cross section
  - Job shop – students to talk about placements
  - Asked them to fill in simple application form
- Deciding on questions
- Filming
  - Good mix of positive students
  - Location of filming
  - Interviews were too rushed, students spoke for 10-15 minutes
  - Best comments were after camera switched off (not just stick to script). Should have asked for clarification at time.
  - Learning experience for project staff

Lisa Ward TQEF Project Manager (Student Employability and Good Practice in Placement Provision)
Production Stages (Cont)

• Editing Cycle
  – Most time consuming part of the project.
  – When do you stop?
  – Reflection time – not a continuous activity
  – Composite film, focused on four areas

• Feedback and Evaluation
  – Invited a cross section of target audience – staff and students
  – Staff only liked positive comments – PR angle.
  – Staff wanted to select students, representative of all.

Discussion

Why and how have student expectations changed vis-à-vis sandwich placements, and how does technology like podcasts meet the new experiences?
